

Note on the FRQ

The Free Response Questions test how much information students know about certain topics. The questions usually focus on important themes throughout modern European history or on pivotal moments of a specific time period. These questions require students to take a stand as they answer the question. Readers are more interested in how well your evidence supports your thesis than in what stand you take.